HUSTON WILLIAMS,
REGISTER OF WILLS,
CALLED BY DEATH*Well-Known County Official
Succumbs to Embolism
at Hospital.*WAS INJURED BY FALL*Governor Pinchot Will Name
Successor and County Committee Will Select Candidate to Run for Office at General Election in November.

Huston S. Williams, register of wills of Fayette county, died this morning at 10:20 o'clock at the Cantonment Hospital of embolism which developed after a fall about two weeks ago while he was at work in his garage at Fairchance. Mr. Williams was 62 years old.

Governor Pinchot will name a successor as register. The Republican County Committee, composed of two persons from each of the 107 precincts in the county, will be called in special session at an early date to select a candidate to fill the vacancy on the ticket for the general election in November, Mr. Williams being a candidate to succeed himself.

Huston S. Williams was born in Springhill township, near the old Springhill furnace. He spent his boyhood days there and then went to Scotland where he was employed in the steel mills. Subsequently for a number of years he followed ranching and lumbering in the West. Returning to Pennsylvania he was employed in the mines at Banning. For 30 years he had been located at Fairchance. He held the offices of constable and tax collector. His term as register of wills would have expired December 31.

Mr. Williams is survived by his widow, Louise Carr Williams, and a son John; also the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Margaret McKenzie, Uniontown; Edwin and William, Fairmont; W. V. Rose and Miss Ada, Uniontown. He was a member of the Eagles, Elks, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias.

UNIONTOWN TEAM
HIGHEST IN WEST
PENN COMPETITION

First all teams of substitutions in Territory "A" of the West Penn Power Company, in charge of H. W. McRobbie, met in a contest in the drafting rooms of the local office Saturday. Seven teams competed.

The purpose of the contest was to get the teams in shape for a big first all meet to be held among all the power company teams sometime during the early part of next year. That contest will be either in Pittsburgh or Charleston.

Uniontown No. 1 team, of which section Robert P. Smith is foreman, won first place with the high mark of 89 per cent. The Greensburg No. 1 team, of which J. J. Walsh is captain, won second place with a percentage of 98. A. L. Davis is foreman of that department.

The Connellsville team, representing the telephone department, was third. The local outfit secured a percentage of 84.6. Robert Cooper is foreman of the department and E. E. Cox is captain of the team.

Other teams competing and their averages included: Uniontown, No. 2, P. E. Newcomer, captain, 83.5 per cent; Charleston, J. M. Hovan, captain, 78 per cent; McKeenstown, T. R. Lancaster, captain, 89.5; Greensburg, No. 2, S. Handick, captain, 82 per cent.

The members of the Uniontown team taking first place were Bryce Colbert, captain; E. L. Miller, Homer Miller, James Crawford and R. E. Edwards.

Members of other first all teams served as judges. Fred C. Smith, who is in charge of all first all teams in Territory "A", was chief judge.

Re-Hearing Is Ordered in Gas Controversy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The Supreme Court today ordered a re-hearing of the gas cases brought by Ohio and Pennsylvania against West Virginia.

The cases will be re-argued November 19.

The right of West Virginia to prohibit the exportation of natural gas is involved.

GREENSBURG, Oct. 8.—Outplayed, outguessed, outwitted and outwounded, Greensburg High School's football eleven lost to Hazen High eleven, of Youngstown, Ohio, at Athletic Park, Saturday afternoon by the score of 16 to 13. It was the worst defeat suffered by the Brown and White aggregation since 1919 when Harrisburg Tenth, with the blond curl back in the lineup, scored a 28 to 0 triumph on the local field.

Says Nuts Are Scarce.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Swan of Acme street report the chestnut crop as being very poor this season, after spending the week-end in confidence. Mr. Swan found 12 nuts, he said.

OPENING CHRISTIAN
BIBLE SCHOOL PLANT
MEMORABLE OCCASION

The formal opening Sunday of the Bible school addition to the Christian Church was an occasion that will be remembered by the membership as one of its "red letter" days. It was really day in the Sunday school, also in the church.

There had been no unusual methods employed, yet there were 350 at the Bible school, this being a gain of more than 80 over the Sunday previous. The Martha Norton Class was the banner one, with an attendance of 54. There were 39 in the Philistine Class and 30 in the Men's Bible Class.

For more than a year the work of building and reconstruction has been going on, and the prosecution of the activities of both church and school has been attended with many difficulties and much confusion. Continuous shifting has been necessary, and yet there has not been a cancellation of one single service in the whole period. This has been secured through the harmonious cooperation of the building committee and the superintendent of construction, W. W. Kern, aided by the patience of the workers and members of the church.

Home forces had complete charge of the services throughout the day yesterday. The pastor preached both morning and evening. There were three accessions to the church in the morning, and at the close there was a most beautiful baptismal service in the new and beautiful seecially decorated baptistry.

Tonight Rev. D. Park Chapman, pastor of the First Christian Church of Greensburg, is the speaker, and Rev. A. F. Hanes of Brownsville will preside. Rev. E. W. Hutchinson and Rev. J. H. Dorman, local pastors, will assist in this evening's service, as will other local ministers from night to night. The Bible school assembly room will be used. B. M. Swartz, welder, superintendent of the school, will open the meeting and introduce the presiding minister.

Tuesday evening's services will be held in the large new gymnasium. Rev. John W. Love of Washington, Pa., will be the speaker.

Women Who Use
Perfume Barred
From Vatican

LONDON, Oct. 8.—No women who use perfume will be admitted hereafter to the presence of Pope Pius XI. his apartment in the Vatican, a Central News dispatch from Rome said today.

Monks of the Vatican, in charge of visitors, has been instructed to bar all women using any perceptible scent from audiences with the holy father. The pope is susceptible to headache, the dispatch said, and perfume exercise a deleterious effect upon him.

It is recalled that, in various encyclicals, his holiness has urged women to greater simplicity in dress and manners.

Bishop McConnell
Refuses Envelope,
Rebukes Klanmen

KITTANNING, Oct. 8.—As Bishop Francis J. McConnell was concluding a sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal Church here last night nine hooded and robed Ku Klux Klanmen walked into the church. The leader walked up and tendered an envelope which Bishop McConnell declined. The bishop then rebuked the Klanmen for interrupting a religious meeting.

"I am not in favor of the mask," the bishop said.

The Klanmen walked out, making no comment.

Condenser Installed at Cheat Haven

One 5,000 KVA synchronous condenser and three 2,000 KVA transformers have been installed by the West Penn Power Company in its new substation at Cheat Haven.

The station is located in Territory "A," of which H. W. McRobbie, of this city, is superintendent. The station will be ready for operation soon.

Construction of a brick control building and a storeroom is now under way.

Greensburg Bank
Cashier in Trouble

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The Supreme Court held that the school district of the borough of Greensburg, Pa., must continue the admission of students from other sections of the county to its High School.

The district appeal was dismissed.

By United Press.
WILKES-BARRE, Oct. 8.—More than 22,000 men employed at the 23 mines and collieries of the Hudson Coal Company in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties were ordered on strike today following a long series of grievances dating back before the general anthracite strike of last month.

At a big meeting of representatives from every Hudson coal local the men discussed the grievances and the alleged failure of the company to meet them in conference and a unanimous vote to strike was given. The general grievance committee will meet tomorrow to formally draft demands for presentation to the company.

SCRANTON, Oct. 8.—Claiming the Glen Alden Coal Company had not increased their wages 500 men employed in the Dodge mine went on strike today. President Ingalls of the company will be glad to correct any errors in the wage sheets.

WALTON LOOKS TO SENATE TO PREVENT
REMOVAL FROM OFFICE

By United Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 8.—Leaders of the Oklahoma Legislature held secret caucuses today in preparation for the special session called for next Thursday by Governor J. C. Walton to consider anti-mask legislation. Members of the house planned to take up impeachment charges against the governor before the considering his recommendations.

The governor's friends concede that the house of representatives will recommend that Walton be removed under the Oklahoma statute on impeachment "indulgent" voted by the house is sent to the senate for action. That body votes to either remove or exonerate the executive.

Every effort was being made by the Walton supporters to obtain sufficient pledges from state senators to prevent the two-thirds vote necessary for impeachment. James A. Harris, Republican national committeeman, following a conference with the governor, was reported to have agreed to do everything in his power to induce the 12 Republican members of the senate to vote against removal of the executive. Harris has strongly supported Walton's campaign against the Ku Klux Klan.

Walton's supporters declared today that by his bold stroke Saturday night in calling the special session of the legislature, five days before the day set for the "rump" meeting, which was summoned to consider his impeachment, Walton had gained support in the senate. The senators have not approved the governor's course in refusing to allow the legislature to meet.

Funds Come in Slowly for the Hallowe'en Fete

The soliciting committee of the Volunteer Fireman, after funds which to stage the Hallowe'en celebration here on October 30, met with only fair success during Saturday's canvass. It was announced today.

The committee will go out again today and tomorrow in an effort to secure the quota necessary to make the event a big one. Attractive prizes are necessary for this and to give prizes the firemen must secure money.

Every cent donated by the people of the city is used in the celebration, none going to the firemen. Their only reward is the good time enjoyed by all those on that occasion.

Cope, Missing Printer, Returns

Luther M. Cope of Seattle, who conducts a printing shop in Orchard Hill, Connellsville and for whom a two-day search, beginning at noon Thursday, was conducted, has returned. Mr. Cope and members of the family declined to discuss the case, other than that Mr. Cope said he had been to Pittsburgh.

Police here took up the search for Cope Thursday when his wife reported he had mysteriously disappeared.

Attending Conference.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stebbins and daughter, Miss Anna Stebbins and Mrs. Harry T. Crossland went to Kittanning to attend the annual session of the Pittsburgh Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Local Man Loses All of His Belongings in Japanese Quake*L. J. Fischer Loses Even Money in Bank When Building Is Swept Away.*IS IN MISSIONARY FIELD

A thrilling story of his experiences during the earthquake and how which wrecked Tokio and other sections of Japan is related by a former Dunbar and Connellsville man, L. J. Fischer, a missionary, and a brother of Mrs. Ira Jaynes of the West Side, in a letter received here.

Mr. Fischer spent several months on a furlough here, at Dunbar, in Uniontown and other places, returning to Japan during the summer. He is a grandson of James McVey of Dunbar.

Mr. Fischer who was at Karuizawa, a small mountain settlement near Tokio, at the time of the earthquake, escaped without injury to his person but was rendered practically destitute by the disaster. All his personal belongings, which were in Tokio, were destroyed, leaving him with but one change of clothing in his possession. Western University where he was to teach was demolished and the Tokio bank where he had a small sum of money was also wrecked.

The letter follows:

"I suppose you have been anxious to hear from me and know where I am and what I am doing just now. Of course you have heard of the terrible earthquake we had here and the fires that followed. The first great quake came just three minutes after noon, September 1. The second followed five minutes later and finished what the first one did not complete.

"Then came along the terrible fires that swept the entire ruins away in flames. That was the terrible thing about it for hundreds and thousands who were trapped in the wreckage had not time to extricate themselves or be rescued by friends before the fires came alone and burned them.

"After these first two great shocks, others continued for the next 24 hours, some doing damage and others not so bad. Rescue work was made difficult and thousands of folks were turned insane with fear.

"Fortunately for me I was not feeling well when I reached Japan, having had a recurrence of the illness I had two years ago when I had to leave an operation. Therefore, when I reached Tokio I put what little cash I had in the bank, took my trunk to the house and in an old suitcase put one suit, a change of underwear, socks, four handkerchiefs, three shirts and two old ties.

"With these as my sole possessions I came up to the mountains to Karuizawa to the summer hospital I thought I would be well in a week or ten days and would then return to Tokio. But again, very fortunately, an operation was necessary and I was detained in the hospital here. I was in the hospital when the fearful earthquakes came. Some houses up there were shaken down. The hospital rocked and shook, windows fell out, the Japanese walls fell down, and other things tumbled. We were all taken out safely into the yard and there I built onto a big tree for the ground was heaving and twisting in a frightful manner. I have never felt anything in all my life that could be compared to that feeling. Every day since then there have been several shocks which have been so severe as to compel us to seek safety outdoors.

"All of my belongings with the exception of what I brought up here have been swept away. Also some money I had put in a bank was destroyed when the bank was swept away. I had agreed to go to Waseda University as a professor of English. I had not yet commenced work and was therefore not on the salary list until the tenth of this month. Therefore, I am without an income, home, job or anything. I assure you I am not discouraged nor downhearted. Neither am I fleeing from here. I am going to stay in Tokio and as things rebuild and try to bring some cheer and happiness to the lives of those less fortunate than I.

"I have just been down to see the devastation and my old home now was to give you just a little idea of the horror. Tokio is 70 per cent destroyed. The entire business district and most of the best residential sections are laid low. More than two millions of Japanese are without homes and 150,000 houses are said to have been destroyed. The number of injured is said to be in the region of 500,000. The actual killed is estimated.

LESS DEMAND FOR LABOR IN SKILLED
TRADES IN STATE*By United Press

HARRISBURG, Oct. 8.—Retrenchment in certain industries of the state is causing a slight accumulation of labor on the market which as yet has not reached the stage of widespread unemployment, according to reports from employment offices to the Department of Labor and Industry today.

Orders have been falling off in the skilled trades, it is reported, but the demand for common labor is picking up again.

The calls for office and technical help have been falling off generally and the supply is far in excess of the demand.

Building activity has been brisk throughout the state, according to reports, in anticipation of the cold weather when the seasonal building season begins.

There was no indication of depression in the employment reports, the situation being explained as balanced, there being few calls for workers but no wholesale let outs in the basic industries.

The seasonal farm activity at this time of year has resulted in numerous placements, quite a few women having been sought for grape picking and other harvesting activities.

The mining of coal, both anthracite and bituminous, is now in full swing, the reports show. Bituminous miners are scarce and the demand cannot be filled but there has been no shortage of hard coal miners apparent, the situation in this case, having been interrupted by labor differences which have apparently been adjusted, the collieries operating now at full capacity.

The transportation situation is reported normal, some demand being experienced in Erie, Johnstown, Harrisburg and Scranton. The Pennsylvania Railroad general offices report their labor needs at present are zero.

While prosperity seems to be enjoyed by the wholesale and retail establishments at present, no indication is seen in clothing and manufacturing lines of the "seasonal demands" for goods.

The reflection of this sound business condition has apparently not reached the manufacturers in the form of orders as yet and when it does there is likely to be another spurt in the commodity lines.

BANDITS GET $5,000 AT NEW YORK HOTEL

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Three gentlemen hold-up men walked in to the Ritz Carlton Hotel today, forced the night force into an elevator at the point of guns and escaped with $5,000 in jewels from the Carlton apartments, adjoining. They were frightened away when a night watchman was attracted at the hold-up men broke a glass display case.

Eddyville Convicts
Dead Long Before
Siege Was "Raised"

EDDYVILLE, Oct. 8.—Three graves in the cemetery of the Western Kentucky State Penitentiary, over which the earth was freshly heaped, and the bullet scarred mess hall in the center of the prison area, were mute reminders today of the desperate last stand of a trio of convict murderers who killed three guards, were hanged for 31 hours in the mess hall and found dead from bullet wounds when a storming party entered the harried building late Saturday afternoon.

Members of the morning party entered the mess hall after it had been filled with ammunition, prepared to meet three desperate gun men and found Monroe Walters, Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland still with the rigor of death.

All of the guards had been dead for at least 26 hours and in the case of Griffith and Ferland, whose wounds indicated death from shrapnel, opinion was expressed that the end might have come 48 hours before the siege was raised. Walters, believed to have been the last to die, was shot in the head and had been struck by a rifle grenade.

NEW HIGHWAY PATROL HAS REQUIRED POWER TO ENFORCE THE LAW

HARRISBURG, Oct. 8.—There will be some surprise in store for motorists who daily violations of the highway laws of the state, if they are entering under the delusion that the new highway patrol has no power, according to Secretary Paul D. Wright.

As long as the highway department has supervision of the registration of motor cars, sufficient power can be vested in the highway patrol to keep the highways free from reckless and lawless drivers, "speed merchants" and road "blocks." It was said at the highway department today.

Any one of the 10,000 employees of the State Highway Department can be deputized by Secretary Wright to serve notice on violators of the rules of driving under the new law, it was stated, and for sufficient cause the license of the driver can be revoked. This penalty, if applied in cases where indifference is shown, it was pointed out, will soon rid the road of the menace to automobile driving at the present time.

The inconsiderate driver who "bumps off" a passing machine and escapes unhurt will not escape under the rigid supervision to be exercised by the new force of patrolmen under Secretary Wright. Safety will be strictly observed, according to Wright. "The highways will be safe places for violators of the laws."

State troopers are training the highway patrol at the school in Clearbrook, near Mount Gretna. Nearly a hundred men are taking the course to equip them in the methods used by special police. Within a few weeks they will be ready for action.

Some of the infractions of highway regulations to be specially observed are: Parking along improved sections of the state highway; passing other vehicles on hills and curves; lamps out of focus or with high beam power; overloaded trucks; unlicensed operators; drivers who prevent operation of two-way traffic and those who drive while under the influence of liquor.

Two Dead, Six Ill
After Drinking
Poison Liquor

Pat DeVany, 50 years old and John Goshak, 41 years, both of High House, Pa., died and four or six companions, whose names are withheld by county authorities, are ill as the result of a party held at High House, Saturday night in which moonshine is said to have flowed freely.

Following an investigation Sunday, County Detective Russell placed Lindsay Boxley, alias Eagle Eye, colored, under arrest charged with murder. When found by friends Goshak was sitting in an arm chair and DeVany was lying face down on the floor. Both the members of the party were in various positions. Physicians were summoned. They were resting easily last evening.

During the investigation Sunday a visit was paid to the home of Lindsay Boxley, where, closely hidden in a chimney, officers claim to have found a quantity of moonshine which was brought to Uniontown to be analyzed. It is thought that the moonshine contained wood alcohol or some other poison.

Upon being questioned in Uniontown Boxley is said to have admitted to the authorities that he furnished the men with some liquor Saturday evening, but that he did not make the moonshine he delivered. The coroner's inquest will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Denies Connection With Case.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8.—Lorenzo Savage, a negro "voodoo doctor," confessed today, according to the police, in the murder of Elsie Barthel, a nurse. Miss Barthel was slain Saturday night. Her body was found under a portion of a deserted mansion in the Bloomfield district. Her head was crushed almost beyond recognition by a granite block weighing 75 pounds.

In one hand Miss Barthel clutched an envelope containing the birth of a child, the name, date and time of birth, and the five of spades. In the other hand was an empty envelope in which the nurse had placed $200 before leaving her home Saturday night. This sum, according to relatives, was planned to pay to Savage for an alleged love charm.

Savage was employed as a butler by Dr. H. S. Marshall for whom Miss Barthel worked as a nurse. Savage, confessed, police said, to striking the girl a terrific blow in the face when she changed her mind and declined to pay him the money. This led him to murder the girl, according to his confession. Owing to Savage's supposed "spiritual connection" with the nurse, the negro was suspected from the start. He was arrested last night and after hours of grilling confessed to luring the girl to the deserted mansion. Savage then admitted, according to police, that after telling the girl he liked her, he picked up the granite stone and dropped it on her head. Not satisfied with this Savage hurled bricks at the defenseless form, some of them embedding in the girl's head, police said.

In Savage's house where he lived with his wife, police found a deck of cards, with the ace, deuce and trey of diamonds and the five of spades missing. A handkerchief, used by the body also belonged to Savage, the police said. Savage's wife and Walter Bailey, a chauffeur, who said he had been a close friend of the nurse for several years, are being held by police as witnesses.

Carl Barthel, father of the slain girl, today said he had no knowledge of his daughter's supposed connection with voodoo cult. He said he and his wife belonged to no societies of that kind. The girl's enticement in an arm chair and the Vandy was lying face down on the floor. Both the members of the party were in various positions. Physicians were summoned. They were resting easily last evening.

The bride wore blue crepe and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Anne Cousins, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of tulle and carrying tea roses. Howard W. Boose, brother of the bride, acted as best man. A dinner and reception for the immediate families followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. After an eastern trip Mr. and Mrs. Poole will be at home on Sheridan avenue, Pittsburg.

Rhodes-Charleston.
Ralph Raymond Rhodes and Thelma Charleston, both of Macontown, were licensed to wed at Cumberland.

Harding Memorial Association Formed

By United Press.
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 8.—Papers incorporating the President Harding Memorial Association were filed with the secretary of state today by French Crow, Marion, Ohio, postmaster.

According to this document, the association proposed to erect a mausoleum at Marion in memory of the late President. The body will be placed in the mausoleum and space will be reserved for the body of the widow, Florence K. Harding.

The document names President Coolidge and the entire cabinet and a body of Marion citizens as co-incorporators. In addition to the memorial mausoleum the association plans to take over the famous Harding "front porch" home on Mount Vernon avenue, Marion, for the purpose of converting it into a national shrine.

White Lily Bacon Comes in Lean Strips

WHAT adds more zest to a meal than the right kind of bacon—with fried eggs and parsley gravies; or with oil or ingredients and mayonnaise in a sandwich? Particularly if the bacon is perfect. WHITE LILY.

White Lily is taken from the lean sides of carefully chosen, corn-fed porkers, less than one year old. There's no salt in it. It's never fried because the tender strips don't crisp too much in the pan.

They're cured like WHITE LILY Hams and have the same delightful flavor and tenderness—the daintiest morsel of meat the porker contributes to the family menu. Always the same—always reliable—always satisfying. Remember the name at your dealer's—WHITE LILY—it is assurance against disappointment.

Furnish Sun Room to Get Pleasing Effect

The sun room has become so popular that it has virtually added a room to the house.
When furnishing and decorating a sun room, or any other room, one should always bear in mind the effect that color will create for both seasons of the year. For example, in sun rooms the window construction converted it into an outdoor porch for the summer months. It was furnished with red-and-black wicker, with curtains and draperies to match. This color scheme, while stimulating and bright for winter, is entirely too brilliant and warm for the summer. The advisability of purchasing gray, cream, pale-green or natural-colored wicker or painted furniture for year-round furnishing can readily be proved to be excellent, as these colors can be made to appear warm or cool looking with the addition of colorful cushions and accessories.
Wicker flower stands enable the homemaker to keep her choice of growing

AUTO CLIMBS TO TREE TOP

Catapults to Another, Falls to Ground,
Two Unhurt.
One of the queerest of motor accidents took place on the state highway,
West Union, Mass., when a small car of the bus type struck an oak tree bent it to an angle of 45 degrees, shoved up the entire height of the tree and made a perfect catapult curve, landing in the middle of another tree twenty feet away. A branch of this tree turned the car over and it fell to the ground. Mr. and Mrs.
Garret Richards, who were in the car, were spilled into the underbrush but were not seriously hurt. The police could hardly credit the story of what happened but the scraped bark and hole in the tree were mute witnesses.

from the summer sun.
And my fruits are refreshing draughts,
quenching your thirst as you journey on.
I am the beam that holds your house, the board of your table, the bed you lie on, the timber that builds your boat.
I am the handle of your hoe, your door, the wood of your cradle and coffin.
Ye who pass me by listen to my prayer: Harm me not!

Automobiles and
Dwelling Houses

American Metal Market.

In the past few years many men have cried out, not so much against the automobile itself as against automobile purchases, and insisted that men ought to build houses instead. The position of the average man, that is of say $99 men out of every thousand, is that he will spend outstantially all his income and will spend it on the things he feels will give him the best value for the expenditure. On this basis some salient facts stand out in the comparison between automobiles and dwelling houses.

The cost of dwellings houses is more than double what it was in 1915. The cost of automobiles is much less than in 1913.

For designing a dwelling house one employs an architect at an expense of several hundred dollars. An automobile manufacturer may spend $100,000, which is a large amount, on a new model yet when he makes only 25,000 a small output, the expense is only $4.00.

As to quality, the test of a dwelling house is superficial appearance. It is a question with the contractor and the artisans, not of how good they can do their work, but of what they can "get away with." At best there is only inspection, not the test of performance.

With the automobile, the judgment of the buyer is based almost wholly upon past performance. The buyer knows what his purchase will probably be like in two years, four years or six years from what other machines of such ages now are.

Automobiles are built very efficiently, in factories where there is a continuous flow of raw materials in large volume and a continuous flow of finished product out. Dwelling houses are built inefficiently, raw materials having to be delivered to a different place for each house.

Automobiles are built under open shop principles and the men must work well.

Dwelling houses are built by union labor, with outrageous restrictions limiting output.

Surely it is not difficult to see that the average man will conclude that he gets much more for his money in an automobile than in a dwelling house.

The demand for automobiles is natural, normal and spontaneous. The demand for dwelling houses has been forced by a dire shortage of housing facilities. The most stringent part of this shortage has now been fully made up. The next volume of building of any consequence will have to be induced by substantial concessions being made to prospective customers.

Will Times Be Good?

Dollars and Sense, Issued by First National Bank, Conneltsville.

"Will times be good?" What does the future have in store for us? Should we go slow and be unusually careful in our business affairs or can we afford to push forward with vigor and confidence?

Of course no one can draw back the curtain that conceals the future. All we can do is to study the signs of the times and try to understand what they mean. All business men should do that. There are many leading business men who are skillful judges of the future.

B. C. Forbes, after studying the situation with great care, gives us twenty reasons for expecting good times in the coming months. We will give some of his arguments here.

First of all, he says, people are more hopeful of good times. There is less fear among business men. That means a great deal indeed.

There is every evidence that the situation of the farmers is improving—and that is very necessary if good times are to be a reality. Food prices are advancing a little and all prices are becoming better balanced. That means that all classes of people will "get their share" of the good times—at least more nearly than in the past few months.

Wages generally are high and the workers of the nation are able to buy more freely than usual. Banks are in fine condition the country over so that all proper business affairs can be financed. Railroads are better prepared than before to handle the heavy traffic demanded of them.

Merchants are buying rather freely and yet they are not stocking up a surplus. The goods are moving in the quantities and that means more buying—more manufacturing—more raw materials from farm and mine and forest.

President Coolidge has the confidence of the people. They do not fear foolish legislation. Automobile factories continue busy. Building continues active. Stocks and bonds have improved in price and popularity to some extent.

There is an increase in the total savings deposits of the banks. In fact, prosperity seems to be healthy and normal and we can enter the winter months with confidence that things will be favorable for good times for most all kinds of business.

The farmer still has much to be desired but there is reason to be hopeful that he will enjoy a larger share of good times than he has had in recent months. Already there is a great improvement in business lines for food. Let us be patient—let us push forward with vigor and yet carefulness. Certainly there is a better reward for the man who tries to win than for the man who is discouraged.

Amending Constitution
Only Way to Get Roads

National Highway Association.

The Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania contains, in section four, of article nine, a drastic regulation regarding the state going into debt. This section reads:

"No debt shall be created by or on behalf of the state, except to supply casual deficiencies of revenue, repel invasion, suppress insurrection, defend the state in war, or to pay existing debt; and the debt created to supply deficiencies in revenue shall never exceed, in the aggregate at any one time, one million dollars: Provided, however, That the General Assembly, irrespective of any debt, may authorize the state to issue bonds, to the amount of fifty millions of dollars, for the purpose of improving and rebuilding the highways of the commonwealth."

At the November election voters are to be given a chance to vote "yes" or "no" on an amendment increasing the amount from the above quoted fifty millions to one hundred millions of dollars.

In 1915 the voters gave the first $50,000,000 bond issue a majority of 282,000. That money has been spent. It pulled a great part of Pennsylvania out of the mud. The new bond issue will build many additional hundreds of miles of durable highways.

If the voters approve this new bond issue no time will be lost in getting the work started, because the last legislature passed a law detailing the procedure to be followed in selling the bonds. Work will be resumed in early spring.

It is hoped that party lines will be obliterated in the campaign to give Pennsylvania the best highway system in America.

There are in the state highway system 10,325 miles of roads, of which 5,277 miles are improved, and 5,048 miles unimproved. The first $50,000,000 bond issue did much, but much work remains to be done—and there is no money to do it unless another bond issue is authorized.

A Riot of Spending.

Bach's Review.

It is to be deplored that the American working public has lost its incentive for thrift. While 85,000 people spent $1,250,000 to see a prize fight, while movie theatres are crowded to capacity, while it is estimated that 2,100 golf clubs are running with full membership, and 1,000 are in course of construction or exploitation, and are being deluged with applications for membership, while department stores are doing the business of their careers, limited railroad trains at high fares crowded to capacity, and running in numerous sections, drawing rooms in greater demands than single berths, and with automobile companies selling to capacity, there seems to be no money for investment, and investment securities are on the bargain counter at enormous, and almost unparalleled returns on the money invested.

WAVES.

Sometimes the waves come roaring in like troops round a beleaguered city.

Advancing with the will to win And deaf to every cry for pity.

Mad with the power which they possess.

The angry waves are merciless.

Another day, when skies are fair.

They come to shore with joyous singing.

And play with all the children there Who seek the shells which they are bringing.

To see them on a summer day You'd never dream such waves would play.

Again you'll see them wearing plumage Like laughs of old on cheekers prancing.

Or like a field of lily blooms On which the morning sun is dancing.

Then riding shorewards gay by one, They're handsome things to look upon.

And so with us and all our moods Smiles of contentment light our faces.

We sing our gentle interludes And hide our strength 'neath country ruses.

But roused by hate and tempo-tossed Then all their fiercest traits are lost.

ANOTHER MARATHON DANCE

By MORRIS

Tested Blood May Wreck Romances,
But Will Prevent Mismatching

By United Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Science may govern future marriages and obliterate the divorce evil.

Auto-typing blood tests to prevent mismatching and promote happy marriages is predicted by surgeons within the next twenty years.

This fact was brought to light at the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American Association of Obstetricians, Gynecologists and Abdominal Surgeons recently held here.

Dr. O. M. Gruhnitz of Detroit read a paper on "Incompatible Blood," which in effect said there were four kinds of blood as far as temperament is concerned and they make for various sorts of dispositions and natures among those in whose veins they flow.

Pursuing Dr. Gruhnitz' topic, Dr. William S. Balbridge of New York declared that the whole fabric of marriage and propagation should be woven along lines more in keeping with medicine and science.

"If blood tests are taken of men and women before they were permitted to marry we would possess solutions for many problems which have hitherto proved vexing, if not actually insoluble," Dr. Balbridge said.

"We would know the best methods of eugenics and we would also have an effective means of doing away with a great number of divorce cases," Dr. Balbridge said that through blood tests persons could discover whether others had a natural affinity for them and whether they were possessors of temperaments that were suited for each other to live in wedded bliss.

Adoption of the blood test within twenty years was predicted by many surgeons attending the convention. They jokingly pointed out that before many more years the prospective father-in-law will ask the young woman who is seeking the hand of his daughter:

"Have you your blood tested and is it of the type that scientists reckon best suited to the red corpuscles of the girl of your heart?"

Thus, many romances of the future may be wrecked on the rocks of science, but physicians are fully convinced that the blood test will reduce divorces, promote happy marriages and prevent intemperate marriages.

DEAF, HEARS RADIO VOICES

This Girl Hears Before in Twenty Years.

Winifred Dedrick twenty-four years old, of Lawrence, Kan., heard the sound of a human voice for the first time since she became deaf when four years old. In listening to baseball scores over a high power radio set, Miss Dedrick was also able to plainly distinguish sounds in the musical concert from the Kansas City Star.

Although stricken deaf and dumb with spinal meningitis when a child, Miss Dedrick has acquired an education. She is a graduate of the State School for the Deaf at Olney and will be a senior in the Fine Arts school of the University of Kansas this fall.

Although many tests have been conducted to see if she could hear this was the first time that she could plainly hear the human voice.

Mrs. Benedict Arnold a Belle.

The wife of Benedict Arnold, the traitor, who sought refuge in England, was a reigning Philadelphia belle, and the toast of the British officers while their army was in that city. "The extravagance of Arnold produced the want of money and probably the prediction of the wife, for what was splendid in the British army influenced them both to forget home and country for a great but illusive hope.

An account in the London Spectator in 1838 said that the two sons of Arnold—James R. and William F.—then middle-aged men, were lying in England; and that each of them received a pension of £81 a year from the British government.—Detroit News.

These Watches Real Antiques.

A watch that is 200 years old has every right to be called an antique. But a watch that was an antique at the time of the French revolution and was well past the century mark when Louis XIV was ascending himself in satins, silks and velvets, that watch today is an antique in every sense of the word. Two such watches are owned by a man in Newark, N. J. They are French watches and both about 350 years old. When the Pilgrims set sail for America these timepieces were ticking away in French waistcoats perhaps the pride of some village innkeeper of affluence.—Exchange.

School Apparel for Boys and Girls

For genuine pride in sporting some new wearing apparel, the average school boy or girl is not to be denied. They appreciate a good appearance just as much as do the older folks.

It takes good materials and good workmanship to make school wear that will stand the tests of the strenuous noon and recess games. You need not expect more service from a school outfit than has been built into it.

This is why Union Supply Company's clothing and shoe lines for children are so popular. Our lines of clothing, knitwear, underwear, hosiery and school shoes have been carefully selected by experienced buyers, and they are offered as representing the best values to be had in school wear.

MOUNT PLEASANT AND PITCAIRN PLAY SCORELESS TIE

Excellent Training and Fine Spirit of Local Boys in Evidence.

MULLIN BROTHERS HURT

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Oct. 5.—The Mount Pleasant High School football team on Saturday played one of the best games ever staged at Pitcairn when it met the Pitcairn High School and tied by a score of 0-0. The training that has been given the boys by Coach Sullivan was evident from the time the first kickoff was made until the final whistle blew. Post, the 120-pound lad, on the back line, gained repeatedly, making almost excellent showing.

H. Mullin, M. McCloy, R. McCloy, Graham, Seafuri and Goff all played good ball, and the plays made by Seafuri won for him the name of "Galloping" Seafuri among the students. He hunted all the holes in the line and made the proper use of each as it was found.

Mount Pleasant was nearer Pitcairn's line, each time than Pitcairn could reach the Mount Pleasant line. The man fans and rooters that accompanied the team were proud of the hard fought, clean battle that waged on the Pitcairn field. The lineup:

Mount Pleasant. Pitcairn.
Murphy L. E. Bordman
Benlock L. T. Duvoe
Mullin L. G. Peters
Graham G. Monahan
Larson R. C. Hal
Keller R. T. Harbison
Croft, Capt. R. R. Moore
M. McCloy Q. R. Ralofugh
H. McCloy R. H. B. Stiffer
Seafuri F. B. Buck, Capt.
Post L. H. B. Adams
Substitutes—Africa for Stiffer, Stiffer for Peters.

The Military Band of Pitcairn led the Pitcairn team, the Mount Pleasant team and the Pitcairn High School onto and around the field before the game.

Literary Program.
The Keystone Literary Society of the First Ward met at the school on Friday afternoon for its first program, with the following persons taking part: Recitation, Thomas Margolin; recitation, Ida Jacobs; declamation, Charles Henderson; reading, Wilford Lakin; recitation, Edith Copeland; recitation, Laura Freed; guess biography, William Santmyer; declamation, Donald Shaw; recitation, Grace Valley; query box, Clifford Farmer; declamation, William Berg; paper, Jean Spence, editor.

Brothers Injured.
Football and bad luck follow in the family of C. E. Mullin of North Church street. With the first practice game that Mount Pleasant High had with the Mount Pleasant Alumni, Woodward Mullin, a junior in high school had his collar bone fractured. Frank Mullin, a younger brother, a student in eighth grade, went out with his team to practice and his arm was fractured.

Gibbons Helped Dempsey

Jack Dempsey's friends now say that his bout with Tom Gibbons was a liberal education for the champion.

It revealed to him many things which he thought he knew and didn't. Or, rather, it revealed to him that he had forgotten many of the things he used to know.

Nothing but a surprise battle such as Gibbons put up could impress upon Dempsey the fact that he wasn't as good at that time as all his admirers were telling him he was.

CHAMPIONSHIP RACE OF 1908 RECALLED

Present Runaway for Pennant Is Quite Different.

The runaway race the New York Yankees made in the American league this season, in deep contrast recalls the hot finish in the same circuit back in 1908. For the dash for the flag that year was without a doubt the most sensational ever witnessed in either of the two major loops.

In that hectic campaign there were no less than four clubs fighting for the leadership way into the month of September. And it was an even battle all around. Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and St. Louis, the contesting teams, each had an equal chance to cop.

The situation was of further interest in that it was a purely "western affair," the four Atlantic seaboard clubs being left out in the cold.

Down the home stretch came the quiet like so many race horses. It looked like a blanket finish. But with about two weeks to play, the St. Louis entry faltered, and was outdistanced, leaving the other three to wage it out. And what a merry old battle it was.

"Wild Bill" Donovan.

But with the final wire almost in sight, Cleveland, likewise, found the pace too hot, and fell back, though still remained in the running, should either or both of the other two slink up momentarily. The Indians, in other words, retained an outside chance.

On to the last series of the season went the trio, with Detroit and Chicago almost neck and neck. Thus with only three games to play, the Tigers were due in the Windy City to wind up the chase and incidentally decide the pennant winner.

Detroit needed but one of the contests to grab the gonfalon, Chicago had to sweep the series, providing that Cleveland didn't win all four of its games from the Browns, in which case the Indians still had a shot.

But Cleveland was put out by St. Louis in the opening tilt, thus giving Detroit and Chicago a clear field.

Seemingly to make a sensational finish to an otherwise sensational race, the White Sox captured the first two games, leaving the championship to hinge on the final encounter of the season. Victory for either club meant the pennant, and a chance to get into the world series.

Needless to say, that last game was watched with intense interest throughout the country. Baseball fans were all "hot up." For a championship was at stake. And championship aren't won in a day.

But the Tigers, with their backs to the proverbial wall, and on hostile soil, aided by the great pitching of "Wild Bill" Donovan, turned back the cheery Chicago gang, and won their second pennant in as many seasons.

Not a single run did the White Sox get off the offerings of Donovan that day, so well was the "Smiler" the master of ceremonies, while the Tigers almost annihilated the Chicago hurlers, leaving no "ifs and ands" as to the rightful victor.

And thus ended the 1908 pennant race in the American league—a campaign that no doubt ranks without parallel in the history of baseball.

Brothers Win in Arena

Many families have turned out two of more aspirants to ring fame. Four Leonards have met with more or less success in the squared circle. They are Benny, Charlie, Willie and Joey. Both Mike and Tom Gibbons were very near to the championship of their divisions. Then, Mike Twine and Jack Twine Sullivan made pugilistic history a decade or so ago.

Three Attells hung their stars, namely, Abe, Cassar and Monte. Bernard Dempsey sought pugilistic honors before his brother Jack took up the game. Bryan, Anthony and Joe Downey are boxing today. At one time there were four or five Trombles cluttering up Detroit rings. Carl, however, was the only one who ever reached a position of prominence.

Champion Bride-To-Be Lands At Ellis Island Fifth Time To Wed Childhood Sweetheart

MISS RUTH CARLSEN.

NEW YORK—True love will find a way, or know the reason why. So says Miss Ruth Carlsen, now recognized as the world's champion bride-to-be, who has just landed in America for the fifth time in an effort to meet and wed her sweetheart, Albert Haggblom, of New York.

Four times before, Miss Carlsen failed to find America, but was always excluded and sent back because Finland's quota of immigrants had been reached. Undaunted, the young determined woman arrived on the Swedish-American ship Kungsholm. This time, she says, Uncle Sam himself can't stop her from becoming Mrs. Haggblom.

"NAVY DAY" IS PLANNED FOR U. S. SEA FORCES

Officials' Intention to "Clear Up Confusion About Water Defenses" Wins Praise.

With the approval of the Navy department, the Navy League of the United States is planning another "Navy day," when it hopes to center the country's attention on its defenses by sea. The celebration will take place Oct. 27.

The following letter from Acting Secretary Roosevelt to Robert W. Kelley, president of the league, promising the co-operation of the Navy department in making the day a success, was made public at the league's headquarters:

"It is the right of one people to be fully informed on the vital problem of national defense. The navy is our bulwark. Behind its protection our people are able to carry on their lives, develop their ideals, and live in the righteous peace we so earnestly desire.

"It is the right arm of our State department, and translates our national pronouncements from empty words into statements that must be given the most serious consideration by all. Whereas we are all working for every legitimate economy in government, we should never let a penny-wise, pound-foolish policy govern our naval establishment."

"The department will gladly co-operate with you and help in any way to make the people realize their vital interest in the navy."

In a letter to Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Kelley declared the purpose of the celebration was to clear up "much confusion of thought" about the navy.

"Our army and navy have been denounced as symbols of war, their officers and men its advocates," wrote Mr. Kelley. "This is not true. All classes are united in a desire for peace. None desire it more than army and navy men, who realize more keenly than others the horrors of war. They seek only the strength that will maintain peace."

PETER McDONALD, FRICK VETERAN, DIES AT AGE 78

Peter McDonald, 78 years old, died suddenly Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, of 142 North Second street, West Side. Mr. McDonald was born in County Mayo, Ireland, coming to this country shortly after his marriage to Miss Mary McDonald, who died 25 years ago at Broad Ford. He has spent most of his life in and about Connellsville and for the past 30 years he resided at Broad Ford, until a year ago, when he made his home with his daughter. The deceased was well known in this vicinity. He was a veteran employee of the H. C. Frick Coke Company and a member of the Immaculate Conception Church. Surviving are three sons, John of Toledo, Frank of Hazelwood and Mark of Broad Ford; five daughters, Margaret, wife of John Flanagan of Perryopolis, Julia, wife of Henry Ringer of Brownsville, Anna, wife of George Smith of North Second street in this city, Ellen, wife of Peter J. Davis of West Crawford avenue, and Mrs. Bridget Davis of East Crawford avenue. Three sisters also survive: Mrs. Ellen Rowan of Hazelwood, Mrs. Julia Meddison and Mrs. Catherine Dougherty of Danville, N. Y. Twenty-five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren survive.

Indictments for Perjury Expected in Webb Investigation

By United Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Indictments for perjury and other lesser crimes than that of murder are expected when the West Chester county grand jury resumes its inquiry today into the death of Mrs. Gerlie Gorman Webb.

The report of Dr. Alexander Gottlieb, who made a chemical analysis of the dead woman's organs which states she died from natural causes, is expected to be sufficient to disprove the murder theory. The autopsy report will also show that the traces of mercury found in Mrs. Webb's organs were not enough to have caused death.

Get ready, everybody, to fight the demon of the flames. Fire Prevention Week this year is from October 7 to 13 inclusive. Let's all co-operate in making this the greatest Fire Prevention Campaign in the thirteenth annual observance of the Week. Let's go, everybody! Help save the lives of your dear ones and help cut down the enormous property loss!

Taken From Friday's Courier

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK PROGRAM UNDER WAY IN CONNELLSVILLE

National Fire Prevention Week will be observed next week, from October 7 to 13 inclusive. It is a movement that is gaining in importance each year and is backed by insurance companies and safety department heads of cities all over the country.

Just what program will be carried out in Conneltsville is being left to W. C. DeBolt, chief of the Fire Department. He said he has not yet definitely decided just what would feature the work but expected to have some sort of campaign that would attract the interest of both old and young.

Last year a fire alarm box was mounted on a fire truck and its operation explained on the streets. It was also taken into the schools and the students shown the method of using it in an alarm. Chief DeBolt said the week's work had resulted in a great cut in the number of false alarms.

Fire Prevention Week has been established to teach people just what fire hazards are and how to remove them. It originated when the loss from fire in the United States became appalling.

Ads advertising the week are placed throughout the city and teachers in the school rooms will urge upon their pupils the importance of preventing fires, whether at home or in the woods.

Chief DeBolt will probably announce tomorrow just what his program for next week in line with the national campaign will include. He expects to enlist the aid of the school authorities as he has always done in the past.

CONNELLSVILLE PEOPLE CAN HELP REDUCE THE LOSS

Fire Losses in this Country
Reached the Staggering
Total of $521,860,000
Last Year

Why?

Why another "week" when there are already so many weeks set aside for one purpose or another that we can't keep track of half of them? Why should I bother about Fire Prevention Week? What does it matter to me?

You May Be the Next!

Fire last year killed 15,000 people in the United States and Canada. This is about one every half hour. You or one of your family may be the next. In the next twenty-four hours forty-one people will be burned to death and forty-seven more seriously injured if the average continues. Are you sure that one of these fires won't come to your house tonight? Are you sure that it can't come to your school today? Or because you never have had a fire, do you "take a chance" that you never will have one? Some people in South Carolina did a few months ago, attended a school play held in an old wooden school building (like hundreds of other buildings in use today)—and seventy-six of them, burned beyond identification, were buried in a common grave the next day.

In addition to the 15,000 lives the Fire Demon took as his toll last year $521,860,000, or about $1,000 a minute. You are paying your share of this though probably you don't realize it. The insurance companies do not pay fire losses except as they collect from the public the money to do so. They pass the hat and YOU contribute whether you wish to or not. And remember—fire insurance can never reimburse you fully for your loss. And this is not all, for every fire means also loss of home or loss of job.

Stop It!

Why continue this horrible unnecessary waste? Fires CAN be prevented. Nine fires out of every ten, according to reliable statistics, can be easily prevented by simple precautions and common carefulness. Help stop this waste! Your help is needed—don't "let George do it"—get behind this movement personally.

Fire Prevention Week is the time for you to begin to WORK to reduce the terrible annual toll of life and property and make safe the lives of those near and dear to you.

But the end of the week should not mark the end of your interest, for if Fire Prevention efforts are to be successful, they must continue 52 weeks in the year.

Wednesday

A frail boat and its six occupants towed at express train speed toward three thousand miles of open water, through sea lashed into foam by a maddened whale!

A sudden turn; a shout,

"LOOK OUT HE'S HEADING FOR US!"

Before the startled crew can back water, the monster of the deep is upon them!

A flip of its death-dealing tail, or "fluke" and both craft and its occupants are tossed high in the air. The boat falls back into the sea a battered wreck, the crew floundering about in shark infested waters!

"THE RAGGED EDGE"—Starring Mimi Palmeri and Alfred Lunt in a midnight cabaret scene, is the picture today and tomorrow at the Paramount Theatre.

The Soisson

"DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS"—What will be written in screen history as a masterpiece of its kind is offered in Elmer Clifton's romance of the golden days of whaling. Taking more than a year to produce, it presents auto testimony that anything extraordinary in production cannot be achieved by working per schedule. Here is a picture which exudes the richest kind of atmosphere, local color, detail and romance. It is authentic because Clifton went up to the whaling city, New Bedford, and gained the cooperation of its people. The director has gotten away from the bunion path.

While the picture brings forth the whaling industry of the fifties with its dramatic moments revolving around this vital enterprise of yesterday, there is also interwoven a romance, the background of which is colored with a rich glamour. The riches and heroisms of the dead past live again with all their picturesque atmosphere, as well as an education. Everything, seemingly, has been done to make it complete with the color and detail of the period in which it is laid. Palms and palm trees are behind every touch—every incident. It's a heart story as well as a graphic one. And because it is so unusual in theme, characterization and production, it will be talked about as one of the sensations of the year. The photography is exceptional, and the acting is genuine.

The picture is on today at the Soisson.

The Orpheum

"BLUEBEARD'S EIGHTH WIFE"—The underground castle of Bluebeard—he of the many wives whose story for countless years has caused shivers to chase up and down human spines—has been immortalized in motion pictures.

For vision scenes in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," a Sam Wood production for Paramount which comes to the Orpheum, four days beginning today, is a replica of the story book castle, with underground caves and dungeons, was constructed at the studio. Big heavy doors, bound with steel and locked by strong padlocks, block long, narrow passages. Miss Swanson and Huntley Gordon, her leading man, are the only two characters appearing in this sequence of the picture. Both wear costly costumes of heavy material, bejeweled and hung with valuable ornaments.

One of the most exciting scenes ever photographed is that of the wife's discovery of the Chamber of Horrors, where hang the dead wives of Bluebeard. But while the scene gives one a thrill, it is in no sense gruesome.

The Arcade

"GET HAPPY"—A tuneful musical comedy will be presented this week at the Arcade. In the cast are Evon Robinson, Floyd Young, Beulah Benbow, Earl Evans and a cast of 25 talented colored artists, with a big jazz band. A feature of the engagement will be the appearance of the Creole Nightingale chorus. The management of the Arcade guarantees this to be a real attraction; one that every lover of music and fun will want to see. A section of the theatre has been reserved for colored folks tonight.

PATRONIZE THOSE WHO ADVERTISE IN THE COURIER

Three Men AND a Maid

All the proprietor in Mrs. Hignett was roused. This, she felt indignantly, was the sort of thing she had been afraid would happen the moment her back was turned. Evidently last night she had not been as careful as she should have been in directly she had removed the eye of authority. She marched to the window and pushed it open. She had now completely abandoned her kindly scheme of refraining from rousing the sleeping house and spending the night at the inn. She stepped into the drawing room with the single-minded purpose of rousing Eustace out of his sleep and giving him a good talking to for having failed to maintain her own standard of efficiency among the domestic staff. If there was one thing on which Mrs. Horace Hignett had always insisted it was that every window in the house must be closed at lights-out.

She pushed the curtains apart with a rattle and, at the same moment, from the direction of the door there came a low but distinct knock which made her resolute heart jump and flutter. It was too dark to see anything distinctly, but, in the instant before it turned and fled, she caught sight of a shadowy little figure, and knew that her worst fears had been realized. The figure was too tall to be Eustace, and Eustace, she knew, was the only man in the house. Male figures, therefore, that went flitting about Windows, must be the figures of burglars.

Mrs. Hignett, bold woman though she was, stood for an instant spell-bound, and for one moment of not un-pardonable panic, tried to tell herself that she had been mistaken. Almost immediately, however, there came from the direction of the hall a dull clunky sound as though something soft had been kicked, followed by a low gurgle and the noise of staggering feet. Unless he was dancing a pas seul out of sheer lightness of heart, the nocturnal visitor must have tripped over something.

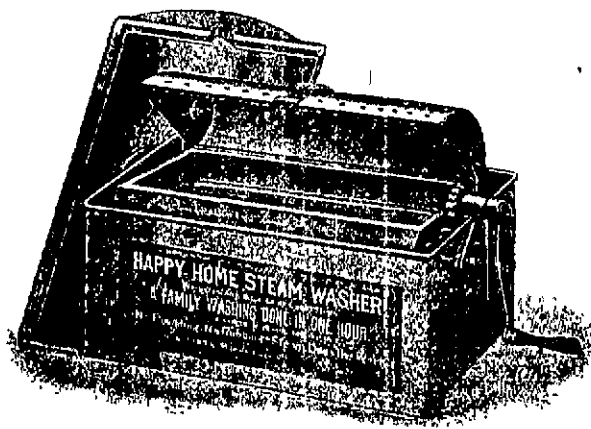

The latter theory was the correct one. Monsieur Webster was a man who at night a description ball had shaken a wicked dancing-pump, and nothing in the proper circumstances pleased him better than to exercise the skill which had become his as the result of twelve private lessons at half-a-crown a visit; but he recognized the truth of the empirical advice that there is a time for dancing, and that this was not it. His only desire when, stealing into the drawing room he had been confronted through the curtains by a female figure, was to get back to his bedroom undisturbed. He supposed that one of the female members of the house party must have been a taker of a stroll in the grounds, and he did not wish to stay and be compelled to make laborious explanations of his presence there in the dark. He decided to postpone the knocking on the cupboard door, which had been the sexual arrangement between him and Sam, until a more suitable occasion. In the meantime he bent over slightly out into the hall, and instantaneously tripped over the foot of Sam, the bulldog, who, roused from a light sleep to the knowledge that something was going on, and being a dog who always liked to be in the center of the most storm of events, had waddled out to investigate.

By this time Mrs. Hignett had pulled herself together sufficiently to feel brave enough to venture into the hall. Webster's presence of mind and Eustace's gracefulness had combined to restore to her the sense of the normal accidental condition of existence. Webster's manner had carried him almost up to the green baize door leading to the servants' staircase, and he proceeded to pass through it without checking his momentum, closely followed by Eustace, who, now convinced that interesting events were in process which might possibly culminate in cake, had abandoned the idea of sleep and meant to see the thing through. He stumbled in Webster's wake up the stairs and along the passage leading to the latter's room, and only passed when the door was brusquely shut in his face. Upon which he sat down to think the thing over. He was in no hurry. The night was before him, promising, as far as he could judge from the way it had opened excellent entertainment.

Mrs. Hignett had listened carefully to the muffled noises from the hall. The burglar—she had now discovered that there were at least two of them—appeared to be actually romping. The situation had grown beyond her handling. It was time to be dislodged she must have assistance. It was man's work. She made a brave dash through the hall, mercifully unobscured by the stairs; moved up them and fell through the doorway of her son Eustace's bedroom like a spent Marathon runner staggering past the winning post.

Episode Two.
In the instant which elapsed before either of the two could calm their agitated brains to speech, Eustace became aware, as never before, of the truth of that well-known line, "Percy, perfect Percy, with love ones far away."
"Percy?"
Mrs. Hignett gasped, hand on heart.
"Eustace, there are men in the house."
This fact was just the one which Eustace had been wondering how to bring up.

The Happy Home STEAM WASHING MACHINE

12 to 17 Sheets Washed at One Time
A Washing in One Hour

No labor, no rubbing, no wash board or chemicals used. Any 12 year old child can operate the Happy Home Washing Machine. Works exactly like the large commercial laundry machines in the cities. It is a veritable little laundry machine made small enough for use in your homes. Large enough for any private family or hotel.

Easier, Quicker and Better Than a Power Washer

We were anxious to try a Happy Home Steam Washer after reading your advertisement. Because we knew Morris Hardware Company never pushed anything that wasn't a success. We were just at the point of getting a power machine when we tried the Happy Home. We like it very much and several of our neighbors are going to get them as soon as they can get in.

Mrs. Ivan Barnes, Unionville, O.

The Greatest Labor Saver Ever Invented for Women.
No Home Complete Without It

While it only weighs 25 lbs., and only uses 1 gallon of water—think of the saving in carrying and heating water by using The Happy Home. It can be used on any cook stove or hot plate. It will wash more clothes at one time than any single tub washer made for family use, washing from 12 to 17 sheets at one cylinder full. It does away with the WASHBOARD and BOILER and washes anything from the finest lace curtains, feather pillows, blankets, quilts, comforts to the dirtiest rag rugs and overalls.

For Cold Packing Fruits and Vegetables

It can't be beat—cold packing 20 quarts at each time

Colored clothes are washed fine in this machine. We do not boil or steam colored clothes but our instruction card with each washer teaches you how to wash the most delicate colors in The Happy Home Washer.

A Trial in Your Own Home

Will convince you that this little washer is even more than we claim for it.

DON'T WAIT! Call your dealer and have him send one to your home to try, and when tried you will never let it be taken from your home. You do not have to stand and turn the crank but as you pass by—doing your other work, turn it slowly for two or three minutes, then go about your work, occasionally during the 20 minutes of steaming, turn as before mentioned. When the clothes have steamed for 20 minutes, lift them out of washer into a tub of rinsing water as you do not have to wash them until after rinsing.

You Do Not Change the Water from the time you commence until you have finished your entire washing—merely add enough to each cylinder of clothes to equal 4 gallons, the amount required.

"I know," he said anxiously.
"You know?" Mrs. Hignett stared.
"Did you hear them?"
"Hear them?" said Eustace, puzzled.
"The drawing room window was left open, and there are two burglars in the hall."
"Oh, I say, no! That's rather rotten!" said Eustace.
"I saw and heard them. Come with me and arrest them."
"But I can't. I've spoiled my ankle."
"Spoiled your ankle? How very inconvenient! When did you do that?"
"This morning."
"How did it happen?"
Eustace hesitated.
"I was jumping."
"Jumping? But—oh!" Mrs. Hignett's face paled off into a nap.

pressed matter, as the door opened. Immediately following on Eustace's accident, Jane Hubbard had constituted herself his nurse. It was she who had bound up his injured ankle in a manner which the doctor on his arrival had admitted himself unable to improve upon. She had sat with him through the long afternoon. And now, feeling just a return of the pain might render him useless, she had come to bring him a selection of books to see him through the night.

Jane Hubbard was a girl who by nature and training was well adapted to her chosen. She accepted the advent of Mrs. Hignett without visible astonishment, though inwardly she was wondering who the visitor might be.

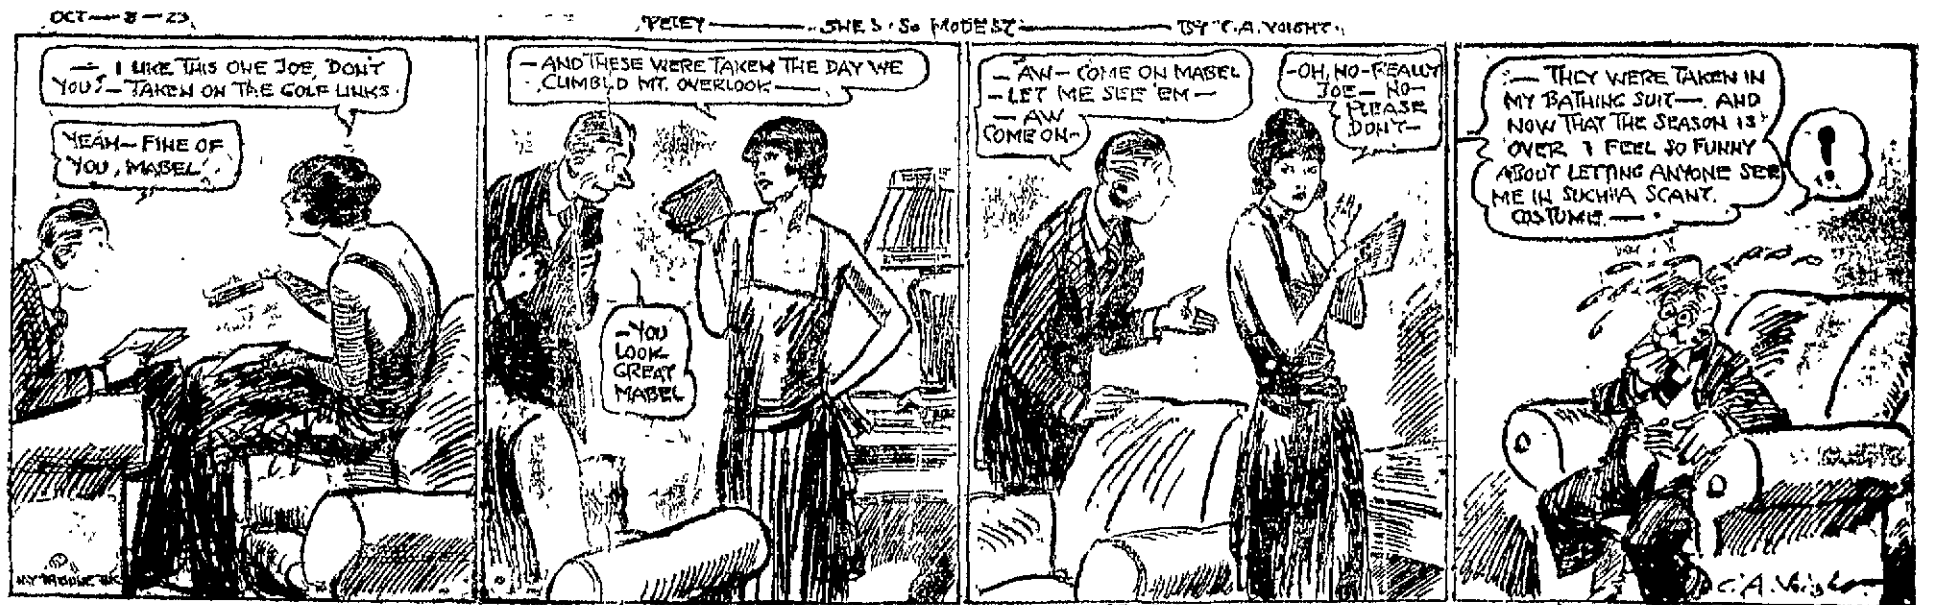

"Good evening," she said placidly. Mrs. Hignett, having glanced from her moment of weakness, glared at the new arrival dumbly. She could not place Jane. She had the air of a nurse, and yet she wore no uniform. "Who are you?" she asked stily. "Who are you?" countered Jane. "I," said Mrs. Hignett portentously, "am the owner of this house, and I should be glad to know what you are doing in it. I am Mrs. Horace Hignett."

A charming smile spread itself over Jane's finely cut face. "I'm so glad to meet you," she said. "I have heard so much about you." "Indeed?" said Mrs. Hignett. "And now I should like to hear a little about you."

"I've read all your books," said Jane. "I think they're wonderful." In spite of herself, in spite of a feeling that this young woman was straying from the point, Mrs. Hignett could not check a slight influx of amiability. She was an authoress who received a good deal of income from admirers, but she could always do with a bit more. Besides, most of the income came by mail. Living a quiet and reserved life in the country, it was rarely that she got it handed to her face to face. She smiled quite perceptibly. She did not cease to look like a husband, but she began to look like a husband who has had a good lunch.

"My favorite," said Jane, who for a week had been sitting dully in a chair in the drawing room adjoining the table on which the authoress' complete works were assembled. "Is 'The Spreading Light'." I do like 'The Spreading Light'!"
"It was written some years ago," said Mrs. Hignett with something approaching cordiality, "and I have since revised some of the views I state in it, but I still consider it quite a good textbook."
